Use this guide like a map, not a textbook.

Family-law problems get easier once you can name four things. They are the court, the path, the paperwork, and the next step. This guide is built around those four questions, for Erie County.

01

What court handles this?

Domestic Relations handles divorce and dissolution. Juvenile handles custody or support when the parents were never married. Probate handles adoption.

02

Do you agree, or is there a dispute?

Agreement changes the path. Dissolution and uncontested filings run on signed paperwork. If someone disagrees or misses a deadline, plan for a more protective process. Do the same if safety is a concern.

What should you gather first?

Start with court orders, filings, and income records. Add insurance details, school schedules, and messages about parenting time. Keep a short list of what you need the court to decide.

IF YOU WERE SERVED PAPERS

Do not wait for the hearing date to act.
 Read the first page for a response deadline.
 Save every document. Write a short timeline of what happened. If a temporary order or emergency motion is attached, get advice quickly.

IMPORTANT

This guide is information, not legal advice.

It explains how things generally work in Erie County. It cannot account for the facts of your situation. Reading it or contacting Gavvl Law does not make you a client. Only a signed engagement agreement does that. For advice about your own case, talk with a licensed Ohio attorney.

QUESTION ONE

Which court is handling your family-law issue?

Erie County has no separately elected Domestic Relations judge. The three Common Pleas General Division judges hear divorce, dissolution, legal separation, and annulment. They also hear protection orders. Paternity and unmarried-parent custody go to the standalone Juvenile Court. Adoption goes to Probate Court.

Why this matters

Filing in the wrong court costs time and money. It also creates confusion about deadlines, service, and temporary orders. If your facts touch more than one court, sort that out first.

PART ONE

Domestic Relations is the divorce and dissolution court.

If you are married, ending the marriage usually runs through Domestic Relations. The first question is whether both spouses can sign one complete agreement.

QUICK PATHFINDER

Do you both agree on everything?

If yes, a dissolution may be possible. If no, a divorce may be the safer or required path. Agreement means more than wanting the case over. It means signed terms on property, debt, support, parenting, and child support when there are children.

Dissolution is built on agreement.

Both spouses file together and ask the court to approve their signed separation agreement. The court still reviews the paperwork and usually holds a short final hearing.

Divorce is built for disagreement or the unknown.

One spouse files against the other. A divorce can still settle, but it gives the court a process for service, deadlines, temporary orders, and trial if needed.

BEFORE YOU FILE

- Confirm you meet Ohio residency and county venue.
- List all property, debt, vehicles, retirement, and real estate.
- Gather income, tax, health-insurance, and child-care records.
- Write down what you need the first court order to address.

WHEN TO SLOW DOWN

Do not rush a form packet if there are safety concerns, hidden money, a spouse who will not share information, pressure to sign, immigration concerns, or a child emergency. Those facts can change both your strategy and your timing.

PATH A

Dissolution can be calmer — when the agreement is real.

Dissolution is often the right path when both spouses are ready to sign the same documents, and neither one needs the court to force information, service, or a temporary order.

COURT	TYPICAL PACE	SERVICE	BEST FIT
Domestic Relations	About 30 to 90 days	Waived (joint filing)	A signed deal

This path may fit if...

- Both spouses agree the marriage should end.
- Property, debt, support, and parenting terms are already settled.
- Both people can sign and attend the final hearing.

It is not for you if...

You disagree on money or parenting, you cannot locate your spouse, or you need a temporary order now. In those cases a divorce is the right filing.

Core filing	A joint petition for dissolution
Agreement	A separation agreement both spouses sign
If there are minor children	A parenting plan, a child-support worksheet, and health-insurance details
Final step	A short hearing where both spouses confirm the agreement

The common mistake

People treat dissolution as an easy divorce and skip the hard part: checking whether the agreement covers the future. A court can approve terms that are clear enough to enforce even when they are not good terms for you.

HEADS UP IN ERIE COUNTY

A dissolution is filed jointly with a signed Separation Agreement and a waiver of service — there is no service of summons. By statute the hearing is held 30 to 90 days after filing, and both spouses must appear. The filing fee is the same $282 as a divorce, but the posture is different — don't relabel one as the other.

PATH B

Divorce gives the court a process when agreement is missing.

A divorce does not always mean a trial. It means the case starts with one spouse filing, the other being served, and the court setting a structure for deadlines and decisions.

Complaint filed

One spouse files the divorce complaint and asks the clerk to issue service.

Service and answer

The other spouse is formally served and has a deadline to respond.

Temporary decisions

The court can address parenting, support, bills, housing, or conduct while the case is pending.

Settlement or hearing

Many cases settle after documents are exchanged. If not, the court decides the disputed issues.

USE DIVORCE WHEN

You need a deadline, a temporary order, information, or a judge's decision.

Divorce is often the necessary path when a spouse will not sign. It also fits when money is unclear, parenting time is disputed, or someone needs the court to act before a settlement.

IF YOU WERE SERVED

1. Find the answer deadline on the papers — about 28 days after you are served (Ohio Civ.R. 12(A)).
2. Do not rely on a promise that the case is on hold.
3. Save the summons, complaint, and any temporary-order papers.
4. List the urgent issues: housing, money, children, safety, vehicles, insurance.

Good divorce strategy is organized, not loud.

The strongest early move is usually a clean timeline and complete financial documents. Add a clear list of what must be decided now and what can wait for the final settlement.

HEADS UP IN ERIE COUNTY

Erie County has no separately elected Domestic Relations judge — one of the three Common Pleas judges (Binette, Tone, or McGookey) hears your divorce, often through a magistrate, and you file with the Clerk of Courts on the 1st floor. An “uncontested” divorce here is a default-style case where the other spouse can't be found or won't take part. E-filing is attorney-only; self-represented filers file on paper.

ANSWERING A DIVORCE · AND THE DIVORCE PAPERWORK

Responding protects your side of the case.

If your spouse filed, you can file an answer, and you can file a counterclaim to ask for your own relief. Missing the answer deadline can let the case move ahead without you.

ANSWER

Respond to what was filed

An answer tells the court which parts of the complaint you agree with and which you dispute.

COUNTERCLAIM

Ask for your own relief

A counterclaim lets you request your own orders on property, support, and parenting, in the same case.

WHILE THE CASE IS PENDING

Temporary orders keep life running until the final decree.

A divorce can take months. Temporary orders set the rules in the meantime: who lives where, who pays which bills, and the parenting schedule while the case is open.

HOW TO ASK	RESPONSE WINDOW	RULE	COVERS
A motion plus an affidavit	Filed with Affidavit 5; decided on the affidavits	Ohio Civ.R. 75(N)	Support, bills, parenting

How temporary orders work

Many courts decide the request on the written affidavits, without live testimony. That makes your affidavit and attached proof the heart of the request.

Answer on time

If you were served with a motion for temporary orders, the response window is short. Missing it can let the court rule on the other side's affidavit alone.

HEADS UP IN ERIE COUNTY

Ask for temporary custody, parenting time, or support by filing Affidavit 5 (Motion for Temporary Orders). These are usually decided on the written affidavits, so attach your income proof. On filing a divorce, a Judgment Entry of Injunctions also restrains both spouses from hiding or moving assets, unless your separation agreement already includes that clause.

CUSTODY AND PARENTING TIME

Parenting terms have to work on a regular Tuesday.

Ohio does not use the phrase "joint custody." The court either names one parent the sole legal custodian, or orders shared parenting, where both parents keep legal decision-making. Day-to-day time is called parenting time.

SOLE CUSTODY

One legal decision-maker
One parent is the residential parent and legal custodian.
The other parent usually still has parenting time on a set schedule.

SHARED PARENTING

Both keep a legal say
Both parents share legal decision-making under a written plan. Shared parenting is about decisions, not an automatic 50/50 split of time.

PARENTING TIME

The actual schedule
This is the calendar: school weeks, weekends, holidays, breaks, and exchanges. The court's standard order of visitation (its default parenting-time schedule) is the starting point unless you agree on your own.

ASKING FOR SHARED PARENTING

The parent who wants it must file a written plan.

If you want shared parenting, you have to submit a proposed shared parenting plan. The court will not build one for you.

A CLEARER WAY TO ASK

Instead of "I want full custody," write the real outcome you need: safer exchanges, a predictable school-night schedule, medical decision-making, or make-up time. Courts decide on the child's best interests.

HEADS UP IN ERIE COUNTY

A parenting class is not automatic in Erie County. Under the 2025 Domestic Relations Local Rules, a judge or magistrate may order one in a specific case (R.C. 3109.053) and will say who pays. The same case-by-case approach applies in Juvenile Court.

CHILD SUPPORT

Support is a calculation, not a guess.

Ohio uses a statewide formula. It runs on both parents' incomes, the parenting schedule, health-insurance costs, child-care costs, and other children either parent supports.

WHAT DRIVES THE NUMBERIncome and proof

Gather pay stubs, W-2s, and recent tax returns for both parents, plus the cost of the child's health insurance and any work-related child care.

WHEN IT CAN CHANGEDeviations

A court can adjust the guideline amount when the facts justify it — for example, a parenting schedule far from standard, or special needs.

WHO RUNS ITThe CSEA

The county Child Support Enforcement Agency usually collects, records, and enforces support, often through automatic income withholding.

Changing an existing order

Either parent can ask for a review when incomes or costs change a lot. You keep paying the current order until the court changes it — stopping on your own creates arrears.

Use the official calculator

Ohio publishes the child-support worksheet and calculator. Running real numbers before a hearing tells you what to expect.

HEADS UP IN ERIE COUNTY

Child support can be changed by motion in the Domestic Relations case (the standard is roughly a 10% change under R.C. 3119.79) or by an administrative review through the Erie County CSEA. Keep school-placement, parenting-time, and custody changes as separate motions — they use different forms and standards.

PROPERTY, DEBT, AND SPOUSAL SUPPORT

Divide what you built, and decide whether support is owed.

Ohio splits marital property and debt fairly — which usually means equally, but not always. Separate property you brought in or inherited can stay yours if you can prove it.

MARITAL VS. SEPARATEWhat gets divided

Most things gained during the marriage are marital, no matter whose name is on them. Gifts to one spouse and inheritances are often separate if kept separate.

RETIREMENT ACCOUNTSQDRO and DOPO

Splitting a 401(k), pension, or public pension usually needs a separate court order — a QDRO, or a DOPO for Ohio public pensions — to avoid taxes and penalties.

SPOUSAL SUPPORTWhether and how much

There is no fixed formula. The court weighs incomes, the length of the marriage, earning ability, and more, and can order support for a set time.

Get the financial picture complete first

Vague terms on real estate, debt, taxes, or retirement cause the biggest long-term problems. A full, documented financial picture protects you years from now.

AFTER THE ORDER

Modifications, contempt, objections, and out-of-state orders.

A final order is not always the end. Life changes, people ignore orders, and sometimes an out-of-state order needs to be enforced here. Each of these has its own path.

MODIFICATIONChange an existing order

To change custody, parenting time, or support you file a motion and usually show a real change in circumstances since the last order.

CONTEMPTEnforce an order

If the other person ignores a court order, you can file for contempt. Bring proof of what was ordered and what was not done.

OBJECTIONSDisagree with a magistrate

When a magistrate decides your case, you usually have about 14 days (Ohio Civ.R. 53(D)) to file written objections with the judge.

OUT-OF-STATE ORDERSRegister it here

An order from another state can be registered in Ohio so a local court can enforce or change it under the interstate custody and support rules.

HEADS UP IN ERIE COUNTY

Post-decree motions stay in the same Domestic Relations case that issued your decree (continuing jurisdiction), filed with the Clerk of Courts — a post-decree motion or a contempt/show-cause is $200. After a magistrate's decision, the designated party must prepare the judgment entry within 14 days.

SAFETY

A protection order is a separate, faster case.

If you are in danger from a family or household member, you can ask for a domestic violence civil protection order. It is its own case and is built to move quickly.

STEP ONEFile the petition

You file at the Domestic Relations Division of Common Pleas, with petition packets from the Clerk of Courts. There is no filing fee for the person asking for protection.

STEP TWOThe ex parte order

A judge can grant a temporary order the same day, based on your sworn petition, before the other person is heard.

STEP THREEThe full hearing

Within days the court holds a full hearing where both sides can testify. A full order can last up to five years.

HEADS UP IN ERIE COUNTY

There is no filing fee for a protection order (R.C. 3113.31). Get the petition packet from the Clerk's Office — court staff cannot fill it out for you, but Safe Harbour and the Prosecutor's Office can help. The court can issue an immediate ex parte order the same or next day, with a full hearing within about 7 to 10 court days.

If you are in immediate danger, call 911.

A protection order is a legal tool, not an emergency response. Use it alongside a safety plan, not instead of one.

PART TWO

Juvenile Court handles custody when parents were never married.

When parents were not married, custody, parenting time, and support usually run through Juvenile Court. The first question is whether there is already a court order.

FIRST ORDEREstablishing custody or parenting time

The court may need parentage, a parenting schedule, support information, and service on the other parent. If everyone agrees, the case is narrower. If not, expect hearings and evidence.

EXISTING ORDERChanging custody or parenting time

To modify an order, you usually show why it should change. You also show why the new arrangement fits the child's best interests.

If there is no order yet

Informal arrangements are fragile. A written court order gives everyone clear rules to follow. That includes both parents and the child's school and doctors.

GOOD TO KNOW

Juvenile cases are document-heavy even when the issue sounds simple. Bring every prior order, agency letter, and school or medical record to the first conversation.

PARENTAGE AND EMERGENCIES

Parentage comes first; emergencies move fast.

For unmarried parents, parentage usually has to be legally established first. Only then can a court order custody or support. And when a child is in danger, there is a faster track.

ESTABLISHING PARENTAGEWhy it has to happen first

Parentage decides who can be ordered to pay support and who has standing on custody. It can be set by a signed acknowledgment. The child-support agency or a court with genetic testing can also set it.

EMERGENCY CUSTODYWhen a child is at risk

If a child faces immediate harm, a parent can ask for an emergency custody order. Courts set a high bar, so come ready with specific, recent facts and any proof.

Support can run on its own track

Child support may be handled with the custody case or through the county child-support agency. Ask which track your matter is on so nothing falls through a gap.

PART THREE

Adoption is joyful — and the paperwork is exacting.

Adoption cases run through Probate Court. They turn on consent, notice, and background checks. They also turn on a home study and whether the relationship is ready to be made final.

STEP PARENT ADOPTION

The consent question comes first.

If the other legal parent consents, the path is usually more direct. If consent is missing or contested, the case is more complex and needs careful review before filing.

Common filings	Petition, consents, a proposed decree, and a birth-certificate update
Common checks	Background checks, a home study, and notice to required people
Home study	Almost always required — a caseworker reviews your home and history
Final step	A probate hearing and an updated birth certificate

STEP ONE

Confirm eligibility

Relationship, residence, marriage timing, the child's age, and the consent facts all matter.

STEP TWO

Build the packet

Use the Supreme Court adoption forms and keep your supporting documents organized by requirement.

STEP THREE

Prepare for the hearing

Know who must attend, what the judge may ask, and what happens after the court approves.

HEADS UP IN ERIE COUNTY

Erie County's Adoption Assessor conducts a home study in stepparent and kinship adoptions (only adult adoptions skip it). Consent of the other parent can be excused under R.C. 3107.07 if, for at least a year, that parent failed without justifiable cause to contact or support the child — the Probate judge decides. A certified long-form birth certificate accompanies the petition.

WHAT IT COSTS

Plan on a $125 Probate filing fee for a stepparent, kinship, or independent adoption. A home study by the court's Adoption Assessor is required for stepparent and kinship adoptions; adult adoptions skip it. Deposits are held until the case closes, and unused amounts are refunded. Confirm current costs with the Probate Court.

PART FOUR

You do not always need the same kind of legal help.

The guide gave you the map. Here is what working with Gavvl looks like if you want company on the road. Some people need full representation. Others need a lawyer for one hard part.

FULL REPRESENTATION

An attorney handles the whole case with you.

One attorney manages strategy, every filing, negotiation, and each court appearance from the first meeting through the final orders. Best when a case is contested, high-conflict, or may go to trial. Billed as a retainer plus hourly fees.

LIMITED-SCOPE (FLAT FEE)

Hire a lawyer for the part you actually need.

Pay a flat fee for a specific task: drafting and filing, a single hearing, advice, or document review. Best for uncontested matters and tighter budgets. It is not the right fit for complex or high-conflict cases that need ongoing advocacy.

GOOD TO KNOW

A matter that starts limited-scope can often move to full representation if it becomes contested. You are not locked in.

Divorce and dissolution

Strategy, settlement terms, filing packets, temporary orders, negotiation, and final hearings.

Custody and parenting

Parenting schedules, shared parenting plans, modifications, and hearing preparation.

Child support

Calculations, income documentation, deviations, modifications, and enforcement.

Adoption

Stepparent and kinship adoption planning, consent review, and finalization.

WAYS TO PAY

Flexible options, and one with no credit check.

Your options depend on the service, because Ohio trust-account rules treat retainers and flat fees differently. Exact amounts are set when you enroll.

FULL REPRESENTATIONRetainer-based options

Pay in full by card through Confido Legal. Or use Affirm for monthly payments. Affirm uses a soft credit check that does not affect your score.

LIMITED-SCOPE (FLAT FEE)The widest range

Pay in full by card, or finance through Affirm, Klarna, or PayPal Pay Later, including interest-free options where available.

GAVVL DIRECT · NO CREDIT CHECKAn in-house payment plan.

IMPORTANT DISCLOSURES

The fine print, in plain language.

NOT LEGAL ADVICE

This guide is information, not legal advice.

It explains how things generally work in Erie County, but it cannot account for the facts of your case. Reading it or contacting Gavvl Law does not create an attorney-client relationship. Only a signed engagement agreement does that.

ACCURACYFees and rules change

Court fees, forms, and procedures change. The information here was verified as of June 16, 2026 from official court sources. Always confirm current fees and requirements with the Erie County Clerk of Courts before you file.

AWARDS AND RATINGSWhat they mean

Awards, ratings, and reviews reflect the experiences of other clients and the opinions of the rating organizations. They are not a guarantee or prediction of the outcome of your case. Every case is different.

JURISDICTION AND RESPONSIBILITY

Gavvl Law attorneys are licensed to practice law in Ohio. This guide describes Ohio law and Erie County procedure only. Attorney responsible for this content: Stephanie Green, Esq., Managing Partner. Gavvl Law LLC, 1677 Old Henderson Road, Columbus, Ohio 43220. Privacy policy: gavvl.com/privacy-policy.
